WEBINAR PRESENTATION

INTRODUCTION TO eDISCOVERY: BEST PRACTICES

This MCLE program covers the three ways that law firms are currently handling e-discovery through a cost benefit analysis standpoint and what has the potential for sanctions. The analysis is conducted with the use of a sample data set that could be found in any litigation matter today. It covers many of the terms and ideologies that are commonly seen in the ESI space. This MCLE has been utilized by firms for the following: 1) Introduction to efficient e-discovery review and production; 2) How to justify a Protective Order for production of electronic files due to burden of cost; and, 3) What red flags to look for when trying to get a Motion to Compel for production of electronic documents.

Alex Marjanovic is the Managing Director of Global Sales with Ankura's Data and Technology Practice. Alex has had extensive experience with electronic and paper-based discovery and related litigation production/discovery matters over the past fifteen years. Alex and his team of legal Consultants help in-house and outside counsel streamline their document reviews and productions by guiding them through efficient and cost-effective electronic discovery Technologies and Methodologies. Alex is a graduate of the University of California at San Diego, and is on the Advisory board for the Electronic Discovery Program. Alex has also obtained certifications in numerous advanced educational programs in electronic discovery, information governance and other course related topics.

Ankura is a national and international consulting firm with multiple practice areas, one of which is managing eDiscovery within government investigations and complex legal disputes.
